Meaning: This artwork is really self-explanatory; it is the connection between nature and our planet, including us. Without trees, we would most likely not be alive today. In the future, without trees, the same could be said. There are an estimated 3 trillion trees remaining in our world. They are a resource that we can use, but we need to ensure they are sustained for our future growth and survival. It's a partnership that goes back to the beginning of time. We cut down approximately 15 billion trees annually while only planting 5 billion, give or take a few million. This, unfortunately, is not
